

Claire Farrell BA

Administrative Assistant

Claire did her undergraduate work in English Literature and provides administrative support to the URBED consultancy team. Together with the day-to-day running of the office, Claire maintains URBED'S library of publications, reports, and website and provides support to the company's directors. Claire is currently working on a project we are undertaking with the University College London Towards Successful Suburban Town Centres. She is helping to produce case studies of suburban town centres which will involve organising roundtable workshops. Claire also assists in the organisation of events and study tours.
